ANSWERS TO SECTION IV OF THE COMPLAINT
(“CHRONOLOGICAL NARRATIVE; COMPLAINANT’S
PROTECTED ACTIVITY and
RESPONDENT’S ADVERSE ACTION (in italics)”

In Section IV of the Order, the Court directed MoneyGram to include in this Response a statement either admitting or denying the occurrence of each protected activity and each adverse action alleged in the Complaint [Order § IV(1)-(2)], to state whether it “knew of” each protected activity before it took the alleged adverse action [Order § IV(3)], to state whether a retaliatory motive played any role in each alleged adverse action [Order § IV(4)], and to state its reasons for each adverse action when it contends that the adverse action was unrelated to any protected activities [Order § IV(5)].

MoneyGram understands Paragraphs 91-156 of the Complaint to be Complainant’s attempt to identify protected activities in which he engaged and the associated adverse actions he contends MoneyGram took in “retaliation” for those protected activities. In Paragraphs 91-156 below, MoneyGram has admitted or denied the alleged protected activities and adverse actions.

[Order § IV(1)-(2)]. For instances in which it admits the alleged “protected activities” and “adverse actions” occurred, MoneyGram has stated whether it knew of the alleged protected activity at the time it took the adverse action. [Order § IV(3)]. MoneyGram states unequivocally that a retaliatory motive played no role in any adverse action alleged in the Complaint. [Order § IV(4)]. In addition, for instances in which it admits the alleged “adverse actions” occurred, MoneyGram has stated its reason(s) for taking the identified adverse action. [Order § IV(5)]. Complainant seems to have organized the alleged protected activities and adverse actions by set; for the sake of clarity, MoneyGram has inserted sub-headings delineating each “set.”

A. The Call Center Conference Call with deBlonk.

91. Regarding the allegations in Paragraph 91 of the Complaint, MoneyGram states that Kyle deBlonk, misidentified in the Complaint as Kyle “Deblock,” held periodic leadership listening calls and monthly management review calls, in which Complainant sometimes participated. MoneyGram admits that Complainant raised perceived concerns regarding MoneyGram’s call center, but does not have knowledge or information indicating that these concerns were raised specifically on a conference call in November 2016, and therefore denies the allegation as stated.

92. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 92 of the Complaint regarding Complainant’s subjective feeling that deBlonk “seemed annoyed” at him, and denies the remaining allegations in Paragraph 92 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that this purported “adverse action” occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

B. The Call Center Conference Call with deBlonk, Part II.

93. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 93 of the Complaint. In particular, to the extent Complainant contends that he “pointed out” during a November 2016 conference call that “Compliance was already instructing MoneyGram agents” to “collect additional information from callers identified as potential fraudsters,” as stated above, MoneyGram does not have knowledge or information indicating that these concerns were raised specifically on a conference call in November 2016, and therefore denies the allegation as stated.

94. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 94 of the Complaint regarding Complainant’s subjective feelings. MoneyGram denies that Complainant “lost access” to deBlonk. Because MoneyGram denies that this purported “adverse action” occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

C. The November Call Regarding Claudia Raskey.

95. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 95 of the Complaint. Answering further, to the extent Complainant intends to imply that the termination of Claudia Raskey was not reported to the monitor, the implication is false.

96. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 96 of the Complaint.

97. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 97 of the Complaint.

98. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 98 of the Complaint.

99. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 99 of the Complaint.

100. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 100 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported “protected activity” and the purported “adverse action”

occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

D. The Statement Regarding “Mission Readiness.”

101. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 101 of the Complaint.

102. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 102 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported “protected activity” and the purported “adverse action” occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading. Answering further, MoneyGram states that while Gonzalez on more than one occasion held one-on-one meetings with Complainant to discuss his job performance, those meetings were not conducted in retaliation for his having expressed his opinions. Rather, Gonzalez held the one-on-one meetings because Gonzalez was concerned about serious shortcomings in Complainant’s job performance.

E. Communications with Peter Green.

103. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 103 of the Complaint.

104. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 104 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported “protected activity” and the purported “adverse action” occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

105. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 105 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported “protected activity” and the purported “adverse action” occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

106. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 106 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported “protected activity” and the purported “adverse action” occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

F. Delta Works.

107. Regarding the allegations in Paragraph 107 of the Complaint, MoneyGram states that systems limitations, including those described in Paragraph 107, were known to MoneyGram prior to Complainant’s date of hire, and that the issues were being addressed and enhancements were underway. MoneyGram admits that Complainant sent an “FYI” email to Gonzalez advising that Complainant was working with an internal group on an issue related to Delta Works.

G. The January 31 Meeting and IWL.

109. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 109 of the Complaint.

110. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 110 of the Complaint. To the extent a further response is required, denied.

111. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 111 of the Complaint. To the extent a further response is required, denied.

112. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 112 of the Complaint.

113. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 113 of the Complaint.

114. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 114 of the Complaint.

115. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 115 of the Complaint.

H. Schnucks.

117. Regarding the allegation in Paragraph 117 of the Complaint, MoneyGram states that Sheryl Stanhope reported an issue to MoneyGram regarding block requests. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the remaining allegations in Paragraph 117 of the Complaint (i.e., when and by what method Ms. Stanhope may have reported this issue to Complainant directly). To the extent a further response is required, denied.

118. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 118 of the Complaint. Answering further, MoneyGram states that the reported issue regarding Schnucks was in relation to one individual, not multiple alleged “fraudsters.”

119. MoneyGram admits the allegations in Paragraph 119 of the Complaint.

I. The New York City Trip (Language Barriers).

121. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 121 of the Complaint. To the extent a further response is required, denied.

122. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 122 of the Complaint.

123. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 123 of the Complaint.

J. The New York City Trip, Part II (Sylvia Gil).

125. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 125 of the Complaint.

K. The New York City Trip, Part III (Pressure on RCOs).

127. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 127 of the Complaint.

128. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 128 of the Complaint.

129. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 129 of the Complaint.

130. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 130 of the Complaint.

131. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 131 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported “protected activity” and the purported “adverse action”

occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

L. The Miami RCO Conference.

132. Regarding the allegations in Paragraph 132 of the Complaint, MoneyGram does not know what “incident” Complainant intends to reference, and therefore is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations. To the extent a further response is required, denied.

133. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 133 of the Complaint. To the extent a further response is required, denied.

134. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 134 of the Complaint. To the extent a further response is required, denied.

135. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 135 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported “protected activity” and the purported “adverse action” occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it “knew of” the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged “adverse action” would be misleading.

M. Supervalu (Discussion with Gonzalez).

137. Regarding the allegations in Paragraph 137 of the Complaint, MoneyGram admits that Complainant reported certain perceived concerns with Supervalu agents to Gonzalez, denies that the concerns alleged in this paragraph had or have any basis in fact, and denies the remaining allegations in Paragraph 137 of the Complaint.

138. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 138 of the Complaint. Answering further, MoneyGram states that, in response to Complainant's raising of his perceived concerns with Supervalu, Gonzalez was not "furious" but instead wanted to obtain a full understanding of Complainant's concerns in order to determine their accuracy. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported "adverse action" of "becoming furious" occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it "knew of" the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged "adverse action" would be misleading.

N. Supervalu, Part II (Discussion with Ponce and Morillo).

139. MoneyGram admits the allegations in Paragraph 139 of the Complaint.

140. MoneyGram is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 140 of the Complaint. To the extent a further response is required, denied.

141. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 141 of the Complaint. Answering further, MoneyGram states that Morillo was frustrated that Complainant had conducted a "spur of the moment" review of Supervalu during what had been scheduled as a business visit, and that Complainant had not done any of the necessary background work prior to that review (e.g., reviewing information about the agents or their transaction history), particularly when that background work would have revealed the inaccuracy of Complainant's belief that the ownership of these agents was unknown.

142. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 142 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported "adverse action" occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it "knew of" the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged "adverse action" would be misleading.

143. MoneyGram admits the allegations in Paragraph 143 of the Complaint. MoneyGram admits that it knew of Complainant's expressed concerns regarding certain Supervalu agents prior to terminating Complainant's employment, but denies that it terminated Complainant in retaliation for having raised those (inaccurate) concerns. Instead, MoneyGram terminated Complainant for poor job performance and because he was not a good fit for the job.

O. Supervalu, Part III (The Legal Clinic).

144. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 144 of the Complaint. Answering further, MoneyGram states that Complainant communicated with and requested advice from Lea Pfeifer, not directly with or from John Tyson.

145. MoneyGram states that, based upon his assumption that factual information provided by Complainant was accurate – which later proved not to be the case – Tyson initially supported a recommendation of suspension of the agents at issue, and denies the remaining allegations, if any, in Paragraph 145 of the Complaint.

146. MoneyGram admits the allegations in Paragraph 146 of the Complaint. Answering further, MoneyGram states that when its legal department became aware of the truth of the situation (i.e., when it became aware that the factual information reported by Complainant was not accurate), the legal department determined that Gonzalez was the appropriate person to respond to Complainant's expressed concerns.

147. Regarding the allegations in Paragraph 147 of the Complaint, MoneyGram states that Complainant not only made factual misrepresentations in his conversation with Tyson, but also misrepresented to others the substance of his interactions with Tyson. MoneyGram admits that Tyson brought these misrepresentations to light. MoneyGram denies that Tyson brought Complainant's misrepresentations to light in retaliation for Complainant having sought advice from Tyson and the legal department. Rather, Tyson was motivated by a desire to correct Complainant's misrepresentations and to provide accurate legal advice to MoneyGram.

P. Supervalu, Part IV (Follow-Up with Tyson).

148. MoneyGram admits the allegations in Paragraph 148 of the Complaint.

149. Regarding the allegations in Paragraph 149 of the Complaint, MoneyGram admits that Tyson declined to further engage with Complainant after Complainant's emails became harassing. MoneyGram denies that Tyson's refusal to further engage Complainant was in retaliation for his having sought advice from Tyson and the legal department. Rather, Tyson was motivated by a desire to disengage from a harassing dialogue, particularly after Gonzalez had assumed responsibility for addressing Complainant's concerns regarding the Supervalu agents.

Q. Communication with Ponder.

150. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 150 of the Complaint.

151. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 151 of the Complaint. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported "adverse action" occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it "knew of" the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged "adverse action" would be misleading.

R. Final Discussions with Gonzalez.

152. MoneyGram admits the allegations in Paragraph 152 of the Complaint.

153. MoneyGram admits that Gonzalez did not provide a written response to Complainant. MoneyGram denies that Gonzalez's decision to not provide a written response was in retaliation for Complainant having provided a written rebuttal; rather, Gonzalez was motivated by a desire to discuss Complainant's remaining concerns in person.

154. MoneyGram states that it does not know what Complainant considers to be a "significant loss in communication," and therefore is without knowledge or information sufficient to allow it to admit or deny the allegations in Paragraph 154 of the Complaint. To the extent a further response is required, denied. Because MoneyGram denies that the purported "adverse action" occurred in the first instance, any attempt by MoneyGram to state whether it "knew of" the alleged protected activity before taking this alleged "adverse action" would be misleading.

155. MoneyGram admits that Gonzalez removed Complainant from the Supervalu account, and denies the remaining allegations, if any, in Paragraph 155 of the Complaint. MoneyGram denies that Gonzalez's decision to remove Complainant from the Supervalu account was in retaliation for Complainant having "question[ed] the strategy used by Gonzalez to handle the problematic Supervalu account." Rather, Gonzalez's decision was motivated by Complainant's failure to present accurate facts and by his failure to follow MoneyGram's policies, procedures, and instructions.

156. Regarding the allegations in Paragraph 156 of the Complaint, MoneyGram admits that it terminated Complainant's employment, states that Gonzalez told Complainant that he was not a good fit, and denies that Gonzalez referenced "culture." MoneyGram denies that its decision to terminate Complainant's employment was in retaliation for his having reported concerns about the Supervalu agents, but rather was motivated by Complainant's poor job performance and the fact that Complainant was not a good fit at MoneyGram.

VI.

RESPONSES TO COMPLAINANT'S ENTIRELY DUPLICATIVE LISTS OF PURPORTED "PROTECTED ACTIVITIES" AND "ADVERSE ACTIONS"

For reasons known only to himself, after using Section IV (Paragraphs 91 through 156) to identify each of his alleged "protected activities" and the "adverse actions" MoneyGram is alleged to have taken in response to each of them, Complainant has separately listed the protected activities and adverse actions in Sections V and VI (Paragraphs 157 through 210) of the Complaint. Out of an abundance of caution, MoneyGram repeats its responses below.

ANSWER TO COMPLAINANT'S CAUSE OF ACTION

In Section VII (Paragraphs 211-215) of the Complaint, Complainant has alleged a cause of action for violation of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act. Although not specifically directed to do so, MoneyGram responds as follows:

211. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 211 of the Complaint.

212. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 212 of the Complaint and states that the question of whether it violated the Bank Secrecy Act and other federal anti-money laundering statutes, which it expressly denies, is not properly before this Court for determination.

213. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 213 of the Complaint and states that the question of whether it violated the DPA, which it expressly denies, is not properly before this Court for determination.

214. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 214 of the Complaint and states that the question of whether it made material misrepresentations to its shareholders, which it expressly denies, is not properly before this Court for determination.

215. MoneyGram denies the allegations in Paragraph 215 of the Complaint.

VIII.

OBJECTION TO RELIEF REQUESTED

216. Pursuant to Section IV(6) of the Order, MoneyGram objects to every type of relief requested in the Complaint. MoneyGram denies that it violated the Sarbanes-Oxley Act or in any other way violated any duties it owed to Complainant, and denies that Complainant is entitled to the relief sought in Section IX (Paragraphs 231-237) of the Complaint.

IX.

DEFENSES AND OTHER LEGAL CONTENTIONS

Pursuant to Section IV of the Order, including Section IV(7) relating to affirmative defenses, MoneyGram states that the following are the defenses and other principal contentions of law on which it relies. By identifying these contentions of law and defenses, MoneyGram does not assume the burden of proof regarding any of the elements of Complainant's cause of action, which are that (1) he engaged in a protected activity; (2) MoneyGram knew he engaged in a protected activity; (3) he suffered an adverse employment action; and (4) the protected activity was a contributing factor in the adverse action. Halliburton, Inc. v. Administrative Review Bd., 771 F.3d 254, 258-259 (5th Cir. 2014).

217. MoneyGram states that Complainant has failed to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.

218. MoneyGram states that Complainant's claims are barred to the extent he fails to state each and every element of the cause of action pursuant to which he seeks relief.

219. MoneyGram denies that some or all of the alleged "protected activities" constitute protected activity or conduct under 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(a), which relates only to employees who "provide information, cause information to be provided, or otherwise assist in an investigation" regarding conduct the employee reasonably believes constitutes a violation of certain enumerated laws and regulations. 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(1).<sup>1</sup> Many if not most of the "protected activities" alleged by Complainant, even if true, do not constitute protected conduct under the Act. See, e.g., Allen v. Administrative Review Bd., 514 F.3d 468, 476-477 (5th Cir. 2008) (employee's complaint must "definitively and specifically relate" to one of the six enumerated categories in the Act).

220. MoneyGram denies that Complainant's belief that MoneyGram's conduct constituted a violation of one of the six enumerated categories was either objectively or subjectively reasonable. 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(a)(1) (Act protects employees who report information "regarding any conduct which the employee reasonably believes constitutes a violation") (emphasis added); Wallace v. Tesoro Corp., 796 F.3d 468, 474-475 (5th Cir. 2015); Allen, 514 F.3d at 477 (an "employee's reasonable belief must be scrutinized under both a subjective and objective standard").

221. MoneyGram denies that it knew that Complainant engaged in some or all of the alleged "protected activities" at the time it engaged in the alleged "adverse actions." Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, MoneyGram states by way of example that it did not know of one or more of Complainant's communications with Freshfields monitor Phil Underwood (to the extent those communications constitute protected activities in the first instance), and/or that it did not know of those communications prior to taking the adverse actions it is alleged to have taken.

<sup>1</sup> The statute protects whistleblowers who provide information or assist in an investigation regarding conduct that the employee reasonably believes constitutes a violation of "section 1341, 1343, 1344, or 1348, any rule or regulation of the Securities and Exchange Commission, or any provision of Federal law relating to fraud against shareholders." 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(a)(1). The statute further protects whistleblowers who file, testify, or participate in proceedings relating to alleged violations of the same laws, 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(a)(2), but Complainant has not alleged the existence of or his participation in any such proceedings, and none exist.

222. MoneyGram denies that some or all of the alleged "adverse actions" constitute conduct prohibited by the Act, which provides that an employer may not "discharge, demote, suspend, threaten, harass, or in any other manner discriminate against an employee in the terms and conditions of employment" for having engaged in a statutorily-protected activity. 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(1). Many if not most of the "adverse actions" alleged by Complainant, even if true, do not constitute actionable adverse actions under the Act.

223. MoneyGram denies that Complainant's engaging in some or all of the alleged "protected activities" was a contributing factor in its alleged "adverse actions."

224. MoneyGram states that it would have taken each of the alleged employment decisions about which Complainant complains, including its decision to terminate Complainant's employment, in the absence of any protected activity under 18 U.S.C. § 1514A(a)(1)-(2), the existence of which MoneyGram denies. Allen, 514 F.3d at 476.

225. MoneyGram states that Complainant's claims are barred or limited, in whole or in part, by his failure to exhaust his administrative remedies. In particular, in his September 28, 2017, initial complaint presented to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Complainant alleged only that his "protected conduct" included "efforts to achieve compliance" with "anti-money laundering laws," and with the DPA that "prohibited future violations of the underlying anti-money laundering laws." [Initial Complaint § D.] The only alleged adverse actions were “on-the-job harassment, verbal abuse, isolation, and marginalization,” as well as the termination of his employment. [Id. § E.] Complainant’s allegations in the Complaint are far broader than those he presented to OSHA for investigation, and all such claims are barred.

226. MoneyGram states that the Court lacks subject-matter jurisdiction to adjudicate Complainant’s complaints regarding matters not presented to OSHA for investigation in his Initial Complaint, with regard to which he failed to comply with the statutory prerequisites to bringing the claims in this forum.

227. MoneyGram states that Complainant’s claims are barred or limited, in whole or in part, by his failure to mitigate his alleged damages, if any.

X.

ADDITIONAL FACTUAL OR LEGAL DISPUTES NOT ADDRESSED IN THE COMPLAINT

228. Pursuant to Section IV(8) of the Order, MoneyGram states that although it disagrees with Complainant’s characterization of the relevant facts as stated in the Complaint, MoneyGram has not identified any additional factual or legal disputes that the Court must resolve prior to determining Complainant’s claims.

XI.

GOOD FAITH COMMUNICATION

229. Pursuant to Section IV(9) of the Order, MoneyGram states that it communicated with Complainant in a good faith effort to identify uncontroverted facts and legal issues to which the parties can stipulate.

XII.

RELIEF REQUESTED

For the foregoing reasons, MoneyGram respectfully requests that, upon final hearing, the Court make a determination that Complainant's claims and causes of action are without merit, and enter an order dismissing the same with prejudice; award MoneyGram its reasonable and necessary attorneys' fees and costs; and award MoneyGram all other relief, general or special, at law or in equity, to which MoneyGram may be justly entitled.

Respectfully submitted,
